A Boy Growing Up

• 9:35 p.m.—Folio has just finished; where did the hour go? I enjoyed it so much I feel I should let you know about it. Emlyn Williams was wonderful. Keep up the good work.—M. W., Winnipeg.

• I would just like to say how much I enjoyed your top-rate presentation of Dylan Thomas' A Boy Growing Up on Folio last night. I am one teen-age boy among several who enjoyed this program and would like to see more of its kind. I didn't miss the usual sets so often seen on Folio. Would it be possible to see it again?—David Wood, Oakville, Man.

• I never thought it could be done, but it has: Folio has become a very good program. Since we have all complained when it was bad we must now praise it when it is good. Salad Days, Under Milkwood, and now A Boy Growing Up are among the most entertaining hours I have found on TV, and more people would have found them so had they just sat and really watched without conversation-clogged brains.—S. E. C., Winnipeg.

• There should be more western shows and not as many musical shows such as Music Makers '59, Oldsmobile Theatre, and Saturday Date. The program Folio, should be taken off.—Miss Doris Pott, Woodmore, Man.

• Some people turn their sets off when Folio comes on, just as I do, but I had read about A Boy Growing Up in the CBC times so I left my set on. Thank goodness! I surely would have hated to miss that wonderful program. Everyone I've talked to today was as thrilled as I was.—Mrs. B.K., Winnipeg.

• Thank you for the most delightful hour in four years of TV programs. Emlyn Williams' recital of A Boy Growing Up was just beautiful. Thank you so much.—Mrs. J.S., Charleswood, Man.

• A Boy Growing Up human and simple, not artificial and extravagant. I wish you would show it—or a sequel to it—again on Folio.—G. Hyatt, Winnipeg.

Hockey on TV

• Mrs. M.R. of Rosewood writes that she does not like the hockey coverage—that she has to suffer through it. She is just another one of us who have our likes and dislikes and we all have to bear with a single television channel which is trying to please everyone, and as far as I am concerned, doing a darned good job. The N.H.L. coverage was great. But it would be a real boost to hockey here in Manitoba if someone would sponsor televising the present Memorial Cup playoffs in Winnipeg, even to the extent of blacking out the city. If even a few of these games were televised it would show the average fan that these kids can play just as entertaining a brand of hockey as anywhere else in the country. I wonder what Mrs. M.R. would say if the above were to come true.—A. W. Dales, Great Falls, Man.

Golf vs. Movies

• I wish to protest—a great big protest—over the action of the CBC in changing the late movie. Please, if you have to change anything at all take out programs such as Fighting Words and This Week. As to the insult of golf, put it out on the golf course.—W. N., Winnipeg.

• Thanks for the All-Star Golf last night. It was wonderful. I am certain thousands of golfers in the Winnipeg area were glued to their sets last night and will be every other night this program is on. Golf is one thing in the sport line we have been going a little short on. Thanks again.—J. H. S., Winnipeg.

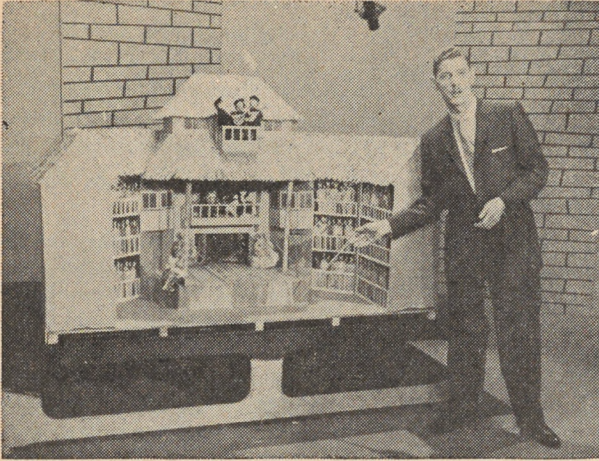

• I am writing to say how much we enjoyed the All-Star Golf last Monday. When it was announced that there wouldn't be any late movie we were disappointed, but decided to watch anyway, and are glad we did. We were pleasantly surprised and hope you will continue with it.—Late Watcher, Winnipeg.

Women's Programs

• In your CBC Times for May 10-16 you ask for comment regarding the Morning Comment and For Consumers programs. I listen with both ears if the material is interesting to me (as this morning's "Place Names") or with half an ear if it is not interesting. I do not plan my work so that I can be by the radio at that particular time, as I do in the case of Matinee Quiz. Doris Dickson's voice is

First Award for School Telecasts — CBC Winnipeg's "The Elizabethan Theatre"

"The Elizabethan Theatre," a joint project of the CBC and the Manitoba Department of Education, was one of six CBC television programs which received Ohio Awards. The program, produced by Len Weinstein, was lauded for its "lively and engrossing presentation . . . and for converting theatre history into living theatre." Above—left: Geoffrey Davies, who was teacher on the program, explains a model of the famous Globe Theatre. Right—actors in a scene from the "Pyramus and Thisbe" section of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream." Script for the program was by Stirling Dorrance; John Hirsch was adviser to the department of education.

CBC at Ohio — 6 of 7 Awards for TV

CBC television programs won six of the seven first awards given in the network TV class at the 23rd annual American Exhibition of Educational Radio and Television programs. The exhibition, sponsored by Ohio State University, was held in Columbus May 6 to 8. The only other first award presented in the network TV class went to the American Broadcasting Company.

One of the first awards went to The Elizabethan Theatre, a CBC Winnipeg production prepared in co-operation with the Manitoba Department of Education. The program, one of the "experimental" school telecasts seen on CBWT and CKX-TV, was praised for "intelligent and imaginative planning" and for "bringing such awareness into functional focus in a lively and engrossing presentation of a subject too often blighted by pedantry . . ." The citation stated that the producer (Len Weinstein) has done an "exemplary job" in converting theatre history into living theatre through the effective, colourful, and knowing blend of the elements needed for sound and vital teaching in this area at this level, and in the skilful integration of content.

Most honoured series at the exhibition was CBC-TV's Explorations which won first awards in three categories — systematic instruction (for "The Origin of Life"), public affairs (for "Men at the Top"), and cultural programs (for "Li-Po: the Banished Immortal").

The citation for Explorations described the series as "near-perfect use of television" and praised it for "excellent technique, wonderful continuity, exceptional editing, and imaginative production." The

"CLOSE-UP ON KRESTOVA" on the Sons of Freedom sect won the "Close-Up" series a first award in the "personal and social problems" category. The citation described the program as "brilliant—a distinguished achievement in the field of the television documentary." The series as a whole was described as "dealing frankly and boldly with controversy." Runners-up in this category were CBC's "Open House" and CBS's "The Twentieth Century."

World Music Festivals

Summer replacement for the New York Philharmonic will be a series of recordings made at European festivals. Tonight—an all-Sibelius concert from Finland, played by orchestras which will participate next month in the 1959 Sibelius Festival—the Helsinki City Symphony and the Finnish Radio Symphony, the latter conducted by the composer's son-in-law, Jussi Jalas. The program will open with an almost-forgotten little piece, "Andante Festivo," which Sibelius composed to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the founding of a factory in 1922. It was also the last work which Sibelius conducted, on New Year's Day, 1939, when it was broadcast to the United States as Finland's contribution to the opening of the New York World's Fair. Jan Sibelius' Symphony No. 6, Op. 104, conducted Jussi Jalas, will be followed by two symphonic tone poems, "The Oceanides," first conducted by the composer in the United States in 1914, and "Lemminkäinen and the Island Maidens," based on the 29th canto of the great Finnish epic, "The Kalevala." The program will close with Sibelius' last major work, the Symphony No. 7, regarded by many as the peak of his whole artistic output.

Handel After Two Centuries

Dr. Boyd Neil discusses the music of Handel which will be featured daily next week in special radio broadcasts marking the 200th anniversary of his death

During the last few weeks, at Halle in Germany, there has been held a Festival of Handel's operas. Halle was the great composer's home town and he was an undergraduate at the university there.

It has been said that Handel's operas should be to the singer what Bach's "48" are to the keyboard player. The only trouble is that the operatic scores are so inaccessible. It has now been discovered that the famous Handel Society edition of some eighty years ago is incorrect and incomplete, while the English vocal scores which are available are complete travesties and are outdated in matters of scholarship. All this is gradually being straightened out, but it will take many years before we begin to hear Handel correctly.

The Halle Festival was apparently a revelation and those who were lucky enough to be present are loud in their praise of the performances and productions and thrilled with the realization that they heard four of the world's greatest operas in wonderful performances. The works given were Admeto, Julius Caesar, Porro and Ariodante. How many of us could hum one single melody from any of these works? Possibly at some time we may have heard one song from Julius Caesar, but that is all. What a tragic state of affairs that this, perhaps the greatest of all composers, should be practically unknown.

Although it is two hundred years since Handel died in London, he certainly needs a bicentennial celebration to teach us something about his music. It is estimated that nine-tenths of his music has not been performed at all since he died and the tenth which is performed, is usually presented in a manner which would have appalled the composer. The chief trouble is that the intimate feeling of his work was completely wrecked during the century that followed his death and the works were presented in a pompous, stilted manner, with orchestral and choral forces badly balanced and much too large. Correct and pious singers, wholly deficient in passion and intimacy, tried to deal with the difficult arias. As one critic has put it very well: "The Handel legend seemed to be that his music was all empty show, pompous colonnades, noble and cold statuary."

Things are coming along and we are beginning to hear this mighty composer in a more suitable style than hitherto. For instance, at the Halle Festival the orchestra included 2 harpsichords, 2 harps, 1 contra bassoon, 1 bass flute, 4 oboe d'amore, 2 viole d'amore, 1 viole da gamba, 4 theorbos. All

Three Types Of Criminals

There are three types of criminals who can't be helped by the traditional system of prison treatment, says Dr. Howard Jones of the University of Leicester, England. A social psychologist, Dr. Jones is currently Visiting Professor at the School of Social Work at the University of Toronto. He is particularly interested in modern developments in penology, the branch of criminology dealing with prison management and the reformatory treatment of criminals. He'll describe the three types of criminals requiring a special approach in radio talks on the Monday, Tuesday and Thursday Post-News Talk, under the title of Criminals I Have Known. Each talk will take the form of a biographical sketch.

Dr. Jones says that for obvious reasons he wouldn't want to tell the these instruments were used for the continuo parts, which was perfectly correct. So that it will be seen how far from the truth we are in our usual feeble efforts with this composer.

Apart from the operas, I think there is little doubt that Handel's greatest works are the dramatic oratorios to which he turned when his opera company went bankrupt. Messiah is by no means typical of these; most of them are non-religious in tone and two of the finest, Semele and Hercules, are not even Biblical. In Handel's time they were nearly always given in a theatre, although without stage action, but they are essentially theatrical music and the one building they should never suggest is the church. In the past, especially at Cambridge during the 1930's there were magnificent theatrical productions of some of the great oratorios. These, again, were revelations of the dramatic force of these works and the recent performances of Samson at Covent Garden have once more shown what the musical world has been missing for two hundred years.

Probably the one and only work of Handel which was conceived on a big scale was the Fireworks music which he wrote in 1749 to celebrate the Peace of Aix-la-Chapelle. At various festive occasions, including Edinburgh Festival, this has been given in the correct style with lots of brass and dozens of oboes and bassoons.

CRIMINALS

intimate story of actual criminals, so he has made his three people composites of types he has worked with. The first is The Punishment Seeker. His mixed-up mind craves punishment, and he's going to go on committing crimes as long as they result in the prison term he wants. The second type is The Empty Man who, through his early experience, is socially isolated, cold and callous, and incapable of normal relationships. "His case points up the importance of taking a close look at what is happening to the family unit in our social scheme," Dr. Jones says. Disturbed people are the result of unsatisfactory family life. The third, less dangerous type, is the Sheep in Wolf's Clothing, or the garden variety of criminal. He's a follower, drawn into crime by associating with other criminals. This talk illustrates the importance of not compounding the difficulties of the sheep by confining him with the wolves, who would only serve to teach him new tricks. While lecturing at the School of Social Work in Toronto, Dr. Jones is doing research on alcoholism. He returns to England in the summer. A graduate of the University of London, he has been attached to the University of Leicester for five years, and has done considerable research among child delinquents and disturbed adults. He is the author of several books: Crime and the Penal System, Prison Reform Now, and Reluctant Rebels, soon to be released.

To use the word "sincerity" of good artistic performances is, I think, always wrong. In fact it usually implies some sort of deficiency in technique which has to be covered over by a suggestion that the hearts of the players, if not their fingers, are in the right place.—Chester Duncan, on CBW's "Passing Show."

"The Merry Widow"

"Folio" season winds up with 90-minute Norman Campbell production of Franz Lehar's best-loved operetta

EVERYBODY knows the words of one of the most popular songs from one of the most popular operettas ever written:

Vilya, O Vilya, the witch of the wood,

Would I not die for you dear if I could.

tricks the sheriff of Nottingham into donating generously to the fund to ransom King Richard. (CBWT-4:30 p.m.)

Sky King

This week—"Stop That Train." Sky and Penny foil an attempt to dynamite a train and then rob it. Sky's aircraft, Songbird, proves useful in capturing the would-be robbers.

Fred Davis is moderator as Toby Robins, Gordon Sinclair and two other panelists try to identify headline news events of the past.

CBC Folio

This week—"The Merry Widow," by Franz Lehar; English version by Christopher Hassall. A 90-minute telecast of this famous operetta brings CBC Folio to a close for this season. The story concerns the efforts of the Pontevedrian embassy to prevent a wealthy young widow from marrying a foreigner and removing her fortune from her own country, thereby impoverishing it. Cast: Helena Scott plays Anna Galwari, the widow; David Atkinson plays Danilo, Anna's suitor from Paris; others, Marie Gauley as Valenciennne, Frank Poretta as Camille, Louis Zorich as Zeta, Bill Cole as Cascada and Alan Crofoot as St. Brice. The telecast is staged by David Adams with members of the National Ballet of Canada. Producer is Norman Campbell.

CBWT—Saddle Songs

Jack Kingston

Starring Connie Holt and Earl Cummings with the Sons of the Saddle (Vic Seibert, Gene Seibert, Johnny Allen, Reg Kelln, Wally Diduck and Monty Levine). Emcee is Lloyd Robertson. This week's special guest is recording star Jack Kingston. (CBWT-10:15 p.m.)

Everyone knows them—but they aren't really the words, they are a translation of the original text, albeit a translation much loved throughout the English speaking world. Consequently, some TV viewers of this Tuesday's CBC Folio will be surprised to hear the familiar melody with unfamiliar lyrics:

Vilya, O Vilya, my nymph of delight,

Haunting the woodland, enchanting the night.

"Operetta-goers loved the old words of The Merry Widow, and with justification," says Folio producer Norm Campbell. "But I'm sure they will also enjoy the fresh directness and simplicity of this new translation by the German author Christopher Hassall. Mr. Hassall, of course, went back to the original text by Franz Lehar."

The Merry Widow (played by Helena Scott) is a rich and beautiful widow living in Paris. She is a Pontevedrian subject who must be stopped at all costs from marrying a Parisian, because then she would take her money from Pontevedra and leave that country flat broke. Danilo (David Atkinson) is hired to charm her away from the most likely Frenchman (Frank Poretta) who is actually flirting with the wife (Marie Gauley) of the Pontevedrian ambassador (Louis Zorich). Meanwhile, back at the Embassy . . . Well, the story may not be very deep, but it's funny and it lends itself to some of the most charming songs in operetta.

The Merry Widow also contains some famous dances: The Merry Widow Waltz, the Polonaise, the Grisettes of Paris doing the Cancan and so on. This provides some first rate spectacle in the operetta and producer Campbell intends using his chance. He has 14 members of the National Ballet for the show with staging and choreography by David Adams.

"We'll be using the overhead monorail camera which allows quick transitions from one set to another," says Campbell. "This will allow us to make the most of the spectacular aspects from above and also to move in quickly for the more intimate singing which, after all, is the essence of TV."

The Merry Widow was Lehar's third operetta. The first failed, the second had considerable success limited to Vienna, while The Widow spread his fame throughout the world. In one year alone before World War I it had 19,000 different performances; at one time in Buenos Aires it ran in five different theatres in five different languages. It led to a long string of successes broken by World War I. Not until he met Richard Tauber in 1924 did Lehar pick up again with another string of successes. He wrote his last work, an opera called Giudetta in 1935, was left alone with his Jewish wife by the Nazis during World War II, and died in 1948. In all he wrote 32 operettas, two operas, two symphonic poems, two violin concertos, three sonatas for piano, about 100 songs and about 100 smaller orchestral pieces.

Montreal-born David Atkinson, Helena Scott, and Frank Poretta have all recently been in the opera season at the New York City Centre. Other cast members, besides Marie Gauley and Louis Zorich are Tom Kneebone (Njagus), Bill Cole (Cascada), Alan Crofoot (St. Brice), Bernie Johnson (Bogdanowitsch), Harry Mossfield (Kromow), Alex Gray (Pritschitz), and Natalie Butko (Olga).

Restaurant helpings are usually far too generous for me; I usually ask for a smaller helping. I'm willing to pay the regular price, but I don't want a plate so crowded with food that you hardly know where to begin on it. But time and time again I've been told: "That's it—it's on the list."—Jean Hinds, on CBK.

RURAL ROUTE NUMBER ONE People thinking of moving to the country often wonder what it would mean to their children, particularly their social life. The answer, of course, varies with the part of "the country," the social life on a co-operative farm in Saskatchewan will be different from that of a ranch in British Columbia and different again from a farm in northern Ontario or the Maritimes. So Jean Tweed answers simply from her own experience on Rural Route Number One, and viewers find out how her two children, Terry and David, amuse themselves. The Story of Five Refugees

"Close-Up" takes a look at the lives of five of the 160,000 derelicts who are "the debris of World War II" in Europe

WHERE will they go? Frank Willis asks this question Wednesday night when Close-Up takes us to meet the forgotten debris of the Second World War, the refugees.

The United Nations counts two million refugees today, living without hope on the rooftops of Hong Kong, in the tattered tents of the Gaza strip, in the hill caves of North Africa. For all of them life is hard.

But for 160,000 derelicts in Western Europe, it is a different kind of hardship. These people have been refugees for 14 years. Some of them were born in refugee camps. Most of them can hardly remember anything else.

These are the people nobody wants. The maimed, the tubercular, the sick in body and spirit. They have watched as others have gone off to make a new life in Australia, in Belgium, in Canada. But for them, the call never comes.

This year, beginning June 1, the United Nations will make a new effort to close out the refugee camps and resettle their victims. They call it World Refugee Year, dedicated to this proposition—that we cannot make speeches about liberty and human rights so long ing a hotbed of crime. He is aided by Ellie, a lady blackjack dealer.

The Unforeseen

This week—"Vengeance." By Donald Pleasance. A brutal French count and a Spanish officer must choose between death and the betrayal of a woman's honour.

Close-Up

J. Frank Willis introduces the story of five refugees of the Second World War. Filmed in Europe by Allan King.

as we leave people rotting in refugee camps around the world.

One camp where they are rotting is Kapfenbergg, somewhere in Austria. Here Close-Up examines their problem. Writer George Robertson describes it this way:

"It's a peculiar sort of village. An invention of the 20th century, a collection of wooden barracks housing a thousand people who come from different countries, speak different languages, have little in common except for one fact. They are all refugees."

Allan King of Vancouver, who produced and directed the film for Close-Up, warns that the refugee story as he found it in Austria is no stark, overt tragedy.

"Before we came to grips with individual refugees, that was what we expected," he says. "But the truth of the matter is, people do not live for 14 years, day in, day out, with tragedy without coming to terms with it."

"This is not to say that tragedy disappears. It simply takes on more subtle forms, cropping out in a look, a reflection on a bitter past, a wrecked future, a useless present. It is this we have tried to capture on film."

The Close-Up film is the story of five people.

It is the story of Alexey Smirdlov, who can never be accepted for emigration to Canada, or anywhere else, because his youngest child is blind in one eye. Alexey says he is happy. He is certainly courageous.

It is the story of Elfi, 14 years old, attractive, sexually precocious. Elfi was born in the camps, has never known any other life. Now she is old enough to leave, but she is ill-prepared for the world into which she must plunge.

It is the story of Vassili, whose wife is dying of cancer, who has

WYATT IN WINNIPEG

When Hugh O'Brian, television's Wyatt Earp (left), spent a week in Winnipeg recently he made three appearances on CBC radio and television. Here he is with announcer Lorne Wallace, reading about himself in CBC Times, just before his appearance on "Spotlight." He was also interviewed on "CBC Reporter" and tried a square dance on the "Warren Davis Show."

is Frank Alsip. Your host is Glynne Morris. (CBWT-5:00 p.m.).

Woody Woodpecker

This week—"Peterkins."

Music Makers '59

Featuring Jack Kane and the orchestra and singer Sylvia Murphy. Tonight's guest is Jack Kippen, caricaturist with a Toronto newspaper. He will do sketches of various members of the orchestra as they are playing. Sylvia Murphy will sing "Stranger in Town."

Have Gun, Will Travel

Western series starring Richard Boone as Paladin. This week—"The Long Hunt." Paladin becomes involved with a man who uses a fugitive's wife as bait to bring the man out of hiding.

Wyatt Earp

This week—"The Beautiful Friendship." The friendship between Earp and Doc Holliday again stands Wyatt in good stead as Holliday helps him battle a gang of outlaws. Hugh O'Brian stars as Wyatt Earp.

Loretta Young Show

This week—"Mr. Wilson's Wife" (Part One). A woman has everything she could want, except a reason for living. Her feeling of usefulness leads her to take refuge in a dangerous web of deceit.

Explorations

This week—"The Last Judgment." This final episode of the Renaissance series shows how Christian feelings merged with the new spirit of humanism, as exemplified by Michelangelo's mural "The Last Judgment."

CBWT—Quality of the Act

CBC Vancouver film on medical research in British Columbia. The program deals mainly with forensic psychiatry.

nothing left but the faded photographs of the happiness they once knew; of Yukiewicz, who has only eight children now because he threw the ninth into a snowbank one night when he got drunk; and of little Yurko, who celebrates his fourth birthday and opens his first present.

The film is a study of people, and differs considerably from the usual Close-Up in featuring visual images rather than interviews. U.N. refugee workers who have seen it describes it as "completely faithful."

It follows the pattern Allan King established in his earlier films Skid Row, The Yukoner and The Pemberton Valley. Skid Row, a documentary study of Vancouver's alcoholics, won the Canadian Film Award for television films in 1958 and was the CBC entry in several international film festivals.

The refugee film was photographed by Rolph Blakstad, a Canadian painter now living in the Balearic Islands off Spain.

CBC Overseas

Ever since the establishment of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization the International Service has broadcast many programs dealing with the work of NATO as a whole and with Canada's part in it in particular.

The latest series of broadcasts relating to NATO was carried out last month. Following the 10th anniversary celebrations and meeting of Ministers in Washington, the NATO Permanent Council visited Canada from April 8 to 10. During the visit to Montreal, representatives of eight of the NATO countries were interviewed by the International Service. These included the foreign ministers of Denmark and Belgium, and the Permanent Representatives of the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, Norway, Italy, the Federal German Republic, and Canada.

Arrangements for these interviews were made possible through the co-operation of the Department of External Affairs in Ottawa and with the help of Canada's Permanent Representative to the North Atlantic Council.

Listeners in the various countries concerned were able to hear the broadcasts over shortwave and in some instances it was possible to arrange for additional re-broadcast of the interviews over local radio facilities. In the United Kingdom, in France, and in Italy the broadcasts were heard over shortwave, while listeners in Germany were able to hear the German interview not only in the regular transmissions but also twice over RIAS Berlin by way of the Trans-Atlantic cable; NCRV in Hilversum and the Danish State Radio in Copenhagen had also asked for a direct Trans-Atlantic cable connection in addition to the shortwave transmissions, and the interview with the Foreign Minister of Belgium was recorded on tape and shipped to INR in Brussels for their Flemish broadcasts.

Drama series introduced by your host Charles Boyer. This week—"Executioner." A secret police chief adopts unorthodox methods to save a rival in love.

Today viewers will take a trip via film, and find out as well as see some of the theories behind its planning. SINK SCIENCE—If you're troubled by ants in your pantry, or flies on the kitchen wall John Irwin's look at modern insecticides should be of special interest. Everyone, too, will want to hear what he has to say about the place of insecticides in your home—and it isn't where the children can reach them!

P.M. Party

very listenable, but Jean Hinds' "dead pan" voice is my favourite.—Florence E. Carlson, Red Lake, Ont.

• I would like to say how much I enjoy Morning Comment. I like Miss Dickson's style of delivery and find the material both interesting and informative. I found the description of life of women in Arabic countries especially interesting and hope for more of the same!—Mrs. Edith V. Paterson, Charleswood, Man.

• In regard to the letter in the May 10 CBC Times about Morning Comment and For Consumers, let me fly to their defence. Surely few women are "bored" with Morning Comment. I always use this program for "coffee break listening" and find it is like having a friend in for a chat. For Consumers should be a longer program; I am more interested in the material on it than I am in the music we are exposed to in the mid-mornings.—Mrs. L. R. McKee, Melfort, Sask.

• I've been tempted to write about Front Page Challenge many times, and tonight's offering (May 5th) really did it. It was an extremely good show tonight, but cut altogether too short to allow a one-hour Dinah Shore Show, than which any Canadian show would be ten times better. Why do we have to continue with this arrangement? Any one of the guests on Front Page Challenge this evening would make good material for Close-Up, where we would have an opportunity to get the whole story, which is certainly not the case on the half-hour allocated to Front Page Challenge.—Mrs. T. F. G., Winnipeg.

• I would like to express my enthusiastic appreciation of a recent tape-recording of the graduate students at the University of Montreal, as they endeavoured to emote their various individual responses to their lot, to life, to their prospects, and in general to the scheme of things as they saw it. I heard that tape twice and some of my students tell me they saw it on TV. Much of it repelled me violently, but let me say that I feel you are to be heartily commended for that revealing half hour. There was little "artistry" about it, but it bore the evidences of deep, disturbing, disruptive emotion; it was staggering in its grim realism. A word-transcript of that tape should be in the hands of every teacher, social worker, parent, pastor, statesman, and well-intentioned men and women of awakened concern living upon this materially privileged (but to many, unsatisfying) continent today. Again, thanks to you for the fact that your positive contribution survives and is heard and heeded amid and despite all the crude bally-hoo and circus barking, the noisy "give-away" welter and spume and froth and scum that is too often suggestive of an awful anachronism — public entertainment for cave-man tastes still provided in the Atomic Age. — R. G. H., Glenmoor, Man.

R. G. H. is referring to "Valedictory '59," heard April 13 and 19 on "Project '59." His students saw "Generation Without a Cause" on "The 20th Century."

"Man to Man"

• Oh yes, I think it is a good idea for men to have a program of their own, but it seems rather pathetic for them to have to resort to risqué "teasers" in order to get men to listen. Do you think most men really care for that kind of entertainment? —Mrs. A. F. G., Edmonton.

• Maybe I'm not manly enough to appreciate this "terrific" he-man show; maybe that's it: I am not familiar with the criteria by which you folks arrive at your definition of manliness, so I am unable to appraise myself in this particular context. But I am familiar with the criterion by means of which I appraise a radio show. It boils down to one simple question: "Is there any good in it?" Sure, laughs are fine. Belly-laughs are better. But something else too, or the show's laid an egg—something wholesome, if you follow me.—David Smith, Edmonton.

• The CBC is to be commended on having the initiative to inaugurate the program Man to Man. Designed exclusively for men, it is gratifying to hear, amid the numerous programming designed for the soap-buying listeners. I would advocate the continuance of Man to Man into a daily schedule. If the male readers of this informative magazine would snap out of their mediocre complacency and write to CBC I believe this could be accomplished.—R. A., Edmonton.

MUSIC ON RADIO

By DR. BOYD NEEL, Dean, Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto

The programming for the CBC Symphony Concert on Sunday evening is most ingenious. It consists of three Concerti Grossi, one by Vivaldi, one by Papineau-Couture and one by Norman Symonds. The Vivaldi work is, of course, the usual 18th century type of concerto grosso and the other two works show how this form has been adapted by modern composers to suit instruments in an orchestra that Vivaldi never dreamed of. The Concerto Grosso by Papineau-Couture, a well known Montreal composer, dates from 1943 and is written for a small orchestra more along the lines of the combinations used by the 18th century composers. The work by Norman Symonds, a Toronto musician, is entitled "Concerto Grosso for jazz quintet and orchestra." The solo group in this work is trombone, saxophone, guitar, string bass and drums. The work has been heard before on CBC and proved to be exhilarating enough for a repeat performance this week. Congratulations to con-

Bluenose Songs, Stories, on Radio

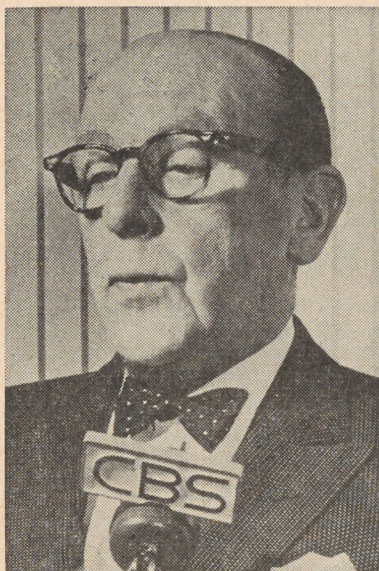

Over 30 years ago a young Nova Scotian author was looking for material. Someone told her to go to the home of Enos Hartlen at South East Passage, near Halifax. "The People down there will not only tell you stories, they'll sing you songs as well," she was told.

Helen Creighton knew little about folk songs, but she went to see Enos Hartlen, and stated her business. "You see those stars up there," said Hartlen. "Well, as many stars as there are up there is as many songs as I used to be able to sing, but now me teeth is gone and me voice is rusty."

After hearing him sing, Dr. Creighton knew she could not allow such songs to die with the people, now growing old, who sang them. And that started a career of collecting folksongs which has brought her international acclaim and scholarly recognition, including fellowships and appointments by the United States Library of Congress and the National Museum at Ottawa.

Recently the CBC has been presenting a Friday night radio series by Helen Creighton, Bluenose Ghosts. Now come another two programs which she has based on her experiences collecting folklore through the years: Bluenose Ballads, this Sunday afternoon (May 24) and Bluenose Folklore the following Sunday.

SIR CEDRIC HARDWICKE

is interviewed on radio this Sunday. The distinguished British actor is the fourth guest on the "First Person" series heard on CBW (7:30 p.m.), CBK (6:30 p.m.) and CBX (5:30 p.m.).

Spanish Programs on CBC Wednesday Night

Two quartets by the Spanish composer Turina, played by the Montreal String Quartet with pianist John Newmark, a recital of Spanish songs sung by baritone Frederick Fuller, accompanied by

John Newmark

John Newmark, and a play by the Spanish author Federico Garcia Lorca called Blood Wedding—these are the elements of CBC Wednesday Night this week (May 27).

Blood Wedding, like all of Lorca's work, deals with the elemental passions of Spanish country life; it tells of Leonardo who steals another man's wife on her wedding night, kills and is killed by the bridegroom.

The two works of composer Joaquin Turina (who died in 1949) to be played tonight are the Piano Quartet in A minor and the String Quartet in D minor. The English baritone, writer and lecturer John Fuller is also a skilled linguist. His musical research has resulted in a repertoire including rare works of many countries and periods.

Arthur Bush first visited one of these new communities, Crawley, four years ago, and this week he returns to see how the people of Crawley have settled in.

Experiment is the life-blood of the arts, and whether the experiments be good or bad doesn't matter in the least. Time, as it always does, will weed out the rubbish. All the same, I think we should keep a wary eye on startling innovations. I can see no reason why we should scrap all our preconceived notions of what is worthy just because we are constantly invited to gaze on six square feet of canvas, plastered with colour, yet bearing no resemblance to anything the human eye has ever seen.—James Wood of Saskatoon, on CBC.

Victor Feldbrill Conducts Symonds Jazz Concerto on CBC Symphony

Victor
Feldbrill

OUT OF THE bayous and sugarcane plantations of the deep American South in pre-Civil War days came a new, pure form of music with a beat that stirred the emotions like nothing before. Flavored with the traditions of African Negroes, Creoles, French and Spanish it ripened into an unconventional, distinctive style in the back alleys of New Orleans, and gradually worked its way up the Mississippi, evolving still further in Chicago until an untamed, rebellious spirit had become a full-blown force. Its name was jazz. Why? Nobody knows for sure.

One school of thought insists that the word jazz was derived from the French verb jaser, to gossip or chat together, as the jazz instruments certainly do in any jam session. Another explanation is that it comes from the nicknames (Jas. or Chas.) of popular Negro musicians. But these are trivial points. The important thing is that jazz has emerged from a fog of misunderstanding (for some people it has symbolized moral and criminal anarchy) and the stultifying effects of over-commercialization, and established itself firmly as a fluid art, rich in possibilities.

A few composers have experimented with jazz within the framework of an old traditional form, and one of the most successful of them is bearded, 38-year-old Norman Symonds of Toronto. His Concerto Grosso for Jazz Quintet and Symphony Orchestra will be performed on CBC radio Sunday night by the CBC Symphony Orchestra conducted by Victor Feldbrill, and the Ron Collier Quintet. For contrast the program will include examples of other types of concerto grosso—one by Canadian composer Jean Papineau-Couture, and another by Antonio Vivaldi, the early 18th-century Italian composer who standardized the three-movement form of the concerto grosso.

The Symonds concerto was written at the suggestion of Terence

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

The Grey Nuns of Montreal. Marguerite d'Youville was born at Verdennes, near Montreal, in 1701. She was educated at the Ursuline convent in Quebec and married Francois d'Youville in 1722. Their two sons both became priests, and when Francois d'Youville died in 1730 Mme. d'Youville became a nun and founded the Sisters of Charity, now known as the Grey Nuns. Mother d'Youville was beatified by the Roman Catholic church at ceremonies in Rome recently, the first native-born Canadian woman to be so honoured. Marion McCormick, the CBC's morning commentator in Montreal, reports on the work of the Grey Nuns today and talks to members of the order about their founder.

Here Comes the Bride. Trial marriages and a honeymoon that precedes, rather than follows, the wedding ceremony are accepted traditions in Bali. The wedding day is determined by the village high priest and occurs about 42 days after the groom has kidnapped his bride and taken her to a secret place. Mrs. Truus Stewart, who lives in Hongkong, reverts on Balinese wedding customs in the second of Matinee's series saluting the wedding season.

Every day this week listeners will hear a portion of a talk between Toronto freelance broadcaster Tony Thomas and the Canadian-born actress Mary Pickford. Today's news commentary is by Tim Creery of Ottawa. The recorded music will be introduced by Pat Patterson.

ductor Feldbrill for arranging such an interesting evening.

In the concert by the Vancouver Chamber Orchestra on Thursday evening we can hear A Short Symphony by Howard Swanson. This is an American composer who hails from Atlanta and is one of the many who made some of his studies in Paris with Nadia Boulanger. Since 1941 he has lived in New York and seven years ago he won the New York Critics award with this Short Symphony, which was conducted by Dimitri Mitropoulos at Carnegie Hall. He is probably best known by his songs which have been sung by many famous singers, chiefly Marian Anderson. Actually the Short Symphony dates from 1948 and since then has been played several times by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. It is one of the most interesting of modern compositions for chamber orchestra.

On Wednesday evening there is a concert of chamber music by the famous Spanish composer Turina, who died some ten years ago. His chamber music output was not large but was of excellent quality. At this concert we shall hear the Piano Quartet in A minor and a movement from the D minor String Quartet. This Quartet was one of his earliest works dating from 1911 and the Piano Quartet was written in 1931, when the composer was writing his best music. Here we have music with as strong a nationalist flavour as any ever written. At the beginning of this century the three famous Spaniards, de Falla, Albeniz and Turina, were all in Paris and had dreams of establishing a great Spanish school of music in the nature of those of France and Russia. Turina writes at that time a rather naive description of the aims and ideals of this group. "There we realized," he wrote, "that music should be an art and not a diversion for the frivolity of women and the dissipation of man. We were three Spaniards gathered together in that corner of Paris and it was our duty to fight bravely for the national music of our country." The group were much encouraged by d'Indy, Debussy, Ravel and Schmitt, whose friends they all were. It is strange that the great Spanish school never really eventuated, although each of these men wrote fine music, and it is somewhat ironical for us to have to admit, as has so often been stated, that "the best Spanish music has been written by Frenchmen."

Bernard Shaw's
Don Juan in Hell

John Drainie

EVERY playwright has his own tricks for getting his ideas into dramatic form. Some writers prepare the last act first, and then start at the beginning and work up to it. Others write a series of scenes and then relate them, and some, of course, begin with Act I and breeze right through. With Man and Superman George Bernard Shaw wrote the middle first, the scene known as Don Juan in Hell, a philosophic dialogue comprising most of Act III. It sums up his feelings and observations about life, death, society in general, and the battle of the sexes in particular. He wrote it at the suggestion of a friend, and then liked it so well that he decided to build a play around it, making the Hell scene a dream sequence involving some of the principals in the rest of the play. Because of the length of Man and Superman—five hours—this scene is usually left out of modern productions, with the author's permission . . . one of the few triflings with his works he allowed.

Since Don Juan in Hell is complete in itself, with few characters, it makes an admirable vehicle for a drama quartet. Elaborate sets, costumes and other theatrical trappings are unnecessary, as the scene is a meaty, brittle dialogue rather than a stage piece. That makes it ideal for radio, as listeners hear on Tuesday afternoon, when Four's Company presents it with Diana Maddox as Dona Ana, John Drainie as Don Juan, Tony Van Bridge as the Statue, and Lloyd Bochner as the Devil. Mavor Moore will be host as usual, and will also edit the scene for production. (This is a rebroadcast. The original performance will take place on Four's Company Saturday night, May 23.

Shaw pictured woman as the pursuer, and man as the pursued, victimized by the cunning schemes of the female. "Why," he says in his preface to the play, written shortly after his own marriage, "the whole world is strewn with snares, traps, gins, and pitfalls for the capture of men by women." He goes on to say: "My Don Juan is the quarry instead of the huntsman. Yet he is a true Don Juan, with a sense of reality that disables convention, defying to the last the fate which finally overtakes him." He points out that in Shakespeare's plays women always take the initiative. "In his problem plays and his popular plays alike the love interest is the interest of seeing the woman hunt the man down . . . I find in my own plays that woman, projecting herself dramatically by

The Open Road. Persons with large families often find it difficult to plan vacations that will provide a change of scenery without wrecking the budget for several months. Marjorie Wood, her husband, and their family, solved the problem long ago. They take camping trips. In fact, Mr. and Mrs. Wood took a camping trip on their honeymoon 25 years ago, and this summer their children, as a 25th anniversary gift, have arranged for their parents to take a camping tour of Europe. In the intervening years, the Woods have camped in many places in Canada and today, in the first of two talks, Mrs. Wood gives some advice about camping with a family, about camp sites in various Canadian centres, and about the details of planning a camping vacation. Mrs. Wood is a high school teacher in Toronto.

Today's news commentary is by Tim Creery of Ottawa. The recorded music will be selected and introduced by Pat Paterson, and listeners will hear another portion of a conversation between Mary Pickford and Tony Thomas.

Lorca's "Blood Wedding"

CBC Wednesday Night continues its series of plays by contemporary European authors this week with a production of Blood Wedding by Federico Garcia Lorca, the Spanish lawyer-poet who lost his life during the Spanish Civil War.

Brought up on his father's farm in the fertile vega surrounding Granada, Lorca sang of the peasants of southern Spain, their elementary passions, their struggle with the scorched soil, their behaviour and their obsession with death. Blood Wedding is so imbued with Spanish atmosphere that although Lorca gives no indication of the setting, it is easy to visualize the white-washed houses of some little hamlet in a forgotten corner of Andalusia.

Frederick Fuller is a skilled linguist as well as a singer. After modern-language studies at the Sorbonne and the University of Munich, he took his M.A. at Harvard where private studies included piano, clarinet and voice.

His musical researches have resulted in a wide repertoire embracing rare works of many countries and periods, and he has given many first performances of works by living composers.

Zampognari. Italian bagpipes are sad affairs indeed and would never do to lead a regiment of kilted Scots into battle! But the village minstrels—the Zampognari—that Ramond de Boer encountered in Frosinone, Italy, could accompany Christmas carols with them and Mr. de Boer defies any Scot to do that. He recorded some of the Zampognari's music when in Italy and talks about it today.

The House That Barrie Built. For the past six weeks, Vancouver radio announcer and writer Barrie Clark has been talking about building a house—his house in particular, but any young couple's family house in general. Today, with James Houston, general manager of the Vancouver branch of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Mr. Clark sums up the information gleaned from his experiences as a house-builder.

Help for the World's Children. The director of the Unitarian Service Committee in Canada, Dr. Lotta Hitchmanova, is a vivacious, energetic, lively woman who has long had an intense interest in helping the children of war-torn countries. She has just returned to Canada from a trip to Korea, India and Hongkong and today, in an interview with Ruth Harding, she discusses the work of the committee and her experience on her recent tour.

Today's news commentary is by Isabel Wilson of Toronto, and the recorded music will be introduced by Pat Patterson. Tony Thomas will continue his conversation with Mary Pickford.

destiny comes through strongly in Blood Wedding. The play presses home the concept of human frailty. Without any conscious will the characters are drawn to their destiny. The plot revolves around Leonardo, who strives to forge his own destiny but is no more able than any of the other characters to shape its end. He steals another worked at CKCK Regina (for three years) and at CFQC radio and TV (in the sports department).

No mere spectator, Bob has played football, baseball, hockey, curling and golf. He is manager of a men's softball team, and last winter served as a referee in the local senior hockey league in Regina. Now that spring is here Bob's spare time will be spent on the golf links.

Bob is married and has two children. He is an avid jazz fan.

Util Bob's appointment, CBK carried the same sportscasts as CBX Alberta—Glen Bjarnason's. Like Glen and CBW's Bob Moir, Bob brings listeners in his province up-to-the-minute sports news at the breakfast and dinner hours.

man's bride on her wedding night, kills and is killed in a fight with the bridegroom.

Lorca's own destiny was as bitter as that of any of his characters. When the Civil War broke out he was at Callejones de Garcia, his country home. He was arrested by Franco's soldiers once during the summer while visiting a friend. After a few days in jail they invited him to accompany them on a visit to his brother-in-law, the Socialist ex-mayor of Granada whom they had killed and dragged through the streets. When they reached the cemetery they told Lorca to get out of the car, clubbed him with rifle butts and then sprayed his body with bullets. His books were burned in Granada's Plaza del Carmen and today are banned from Spain.

Regina - born Robert J. Hutton was recently appointed CBC sportscaster for Saskatchewan.

Bob joined the announcing staff of CBK last August. Previously he had my hands (a process over which I assure you I have no more real control than I have over my wife). behaves just as woman did in the plays of Shakespeare."

In Man and Superman Jack Tanner is the dashing typification of all men who marry against their better judgment. After running off to Spain to escape the snares of Ann, he dreams the scene known as Don Juan in Hell. He meets Dona Ana of Mozart's opera, who resembles Ann, and her father, the Statue, who resembles Ann's father, and who has come down from heaven because he's bored. Dona Ana is indignant at finding herself in Hell, but Don Juan tells her it's "the true haven of seekers after happiness." He and the Devil have a long and scintillating argument about a variety of things, including war and marriage. Don Juan has a lot to say about the Life Force which can draw two strangers into each other's arms, and which can raise mankind to a higher and better existence.

The rest of the Four's Company season offers more tantalizing fare. Producer John Reeves says it will include a feature on The Art of Courting (May 30 and June 2), an imaginary conversation commissioned especially for this series from David Brock, The Trial and Death of Socrates, and other programs on family life, utopias, religious and political freedom, and light, witty fantasies.

NATIONAL SCHOOL BROADCAST

Man., Sask., and Alta. — "Life in Canada Today," the last in a series of four actuality-type programs. CBC reporters have recorded sounds and interviews to give a picture of life and work in four widely separated and vastly different areas. This week—"Uranium from the North," a reporter visits Uranium City to describe the mining and refining of the precious ore, and to talk to people who live there. The program also includes the last in a series of four broadcasts titled "Commonwealth Roundup." This series is planned to help develop in boys and girls a pride in our Commonwealth countries, through greater knowledge and understanding of their ways of life. This week—"Living on The Rock." On this program, the interviewer talks with Bill Luscombe, an Englishman who is a permanent resident of Gibraltar. He was first posted there as a Petty Officer to work in the naval dockyard early in World War II. He liked Gibraltar and after the war he received permission to stay there. He married a Spanish girl from La Linea de la Concepcion, the town just across the isthmus on the Spanish mainland. Today he owns and operates a book store.

JAZZ CONCERTO

Gibbs, assistant to the CBC's director of music. Symond's Octet performed one of his works at the Stratford Festival in the summer of 1957, and Gibbs was so impressed with Symonds' compositional approach to jazz that he urged him to write something for symphony orchestra and small jazz group. The Concerto Grosso is the result—22 minutes long, in two movements, the first slow, the second using two tempos, medium and fast, and including an improvised section and solo portions against an orchestral background. It made its debut on CBC radio two years ago with the same performers. Gibbs describes it as "the most satisfactory symphonic jazz I've ever heard, better than that of Rolf Lieberman and others who have experimented along the same lines." Victor Feldbrill is just as enthusiastic. "Symonds has really found the secret of writing symphonic jazz. His concerto isn't gimmick-ridden," he says, "not a battle of jazz versus symphonic music, and much superior to anything else of its type I've heard."

Symonds has this to say about his work: "I try to incorporate all the elements of jazz—improvisation, consistence of jazz beat and instrumentation—in the framework of traditional forms, without losing the feeling and vitality unique to jazz. The jazz field has enormous possibilities, and Canada offers me all the stimulus I need. My main ambition is to write a jazz opera, if I can find a librettist . . . something more directly associated with jazz than Porgy and Bess . . . and I'm greatly interested in writing jazz for solo dancer."

After studying piano, clarinet and harmony at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto, and considerable experience playing clarinet and saxophone in dance bands, Symonds became interested in jazz composing six years ago, and formed his own group of eight musicians (among them Ron Collier) who were willing to rehearse his experimental work.

Nasser's Nation

The life of the United Arab Republic can be measured in months, yet it has become one of the most controversial states in the world. Recently, freelancer Ray de Boer, formerly of the CBC, took hundreds of feet of taped interviews with politicians, businessmen and men-in-the-streets of the United Arab Republic—"in fact, just about everyone except President Nasser himself." These people look back to the Suez crisis and tell how they felt about it, they talk about present conditions in what were Egypt and Syria, and they look forward into the future. John Lerch will produce The United Arab Republic and Larry Henderson will narrate and write some of the script.
